Official Says IRS Teaches Wiretapping

A Senate Judiciary subcom-mittee was fold yesterday that the Internal Revenue Service operates a school in Washing operates a school in Washington to teach wiretapping techniques to agents despite a regulation banning the use of such methods.

Cresson O. Davis, chief of the intelligence division for IRS in Pittsburgh, said the school is operated only for defense.

"But it could be used for offense," replied subcommittee Chairman Edward V. Long (IPMO.).

"It could," Davis said.

(D-Mo).

"It could," Davis said.
"It was," Long replied:
"It was," Davis added.
The exchange took place at ter a noon recess in the sub-committee's hearing on the use of wirelapping devices by IRS agents in Pittsburgh, part of an overall probe of Government snooping techniques.

ment snooping techniques.